greater exactness and fixedness than a year's research amid Lincoln bibliography. One sees the martyred president as he looked, as he talked, as he laughed over his stories, as he suffered, as he made history, and better than ever before one appreciates the tragedy of his end.

"Aside from this excellent character drawing of the entertainment, the evening was highly enjoyable because of the novelty of the program. Although only one actor occupies the stage, which was devoid of properties save for a few tables, chairs and documents, the bill was a complete drama in four acts in which many characters played their parts. Mr. Chapin, by his manipulation of one's fancy, transforms the platform into the White House, the cabinet-room and the war office, and peoples the stage with many well known individuals. Now the president sits with his family and reads to his wife; he intercedes for little Tad, who now and then tugs at his coat-tails; again he is wielding his cabinet, army officers and soldiers; receiving delegations, arguing with them, telling them stories; another time he is talking with a squire, and then realistically he is addressing the people summoned to the White House windows by the act of the actor.

"From the rapt attention and smiling approval displayed on the faces of distinguished men in the audience who knew the president himself, one could see that the actor's illusions were highly perfected.

"From a standpoint of dramatic literature and from a presentation of historical mimicry embellished by extraordinary histrionic power, one is seldom privileged to see such an impressive scene as that utilized for the end of the entertainment. This is Lincoln's narration of his prophetic dream, in which he foretells his assassination. Dressed for the theater, he receives a colonel, who wishes to furnish him with military protection. He describes the dream of hearing the city in lamentation and a corpse in the White House. Finishing the dream, he takes up the pardon for a boy that Stanton would have hanged, and leaves with a cheery good-night, to sleep, as he says, the sounder for his mercy."

Foley's Kidney Remedy—an Appreciation.

L. McConnell, Catherine St., Elmhurst, N. Y., writes: "I wish to express my appreciation of the great good I derived from Foley's Kidney Remedy, which I used for a bad case of kidney trouble. Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken." Sold by Elvey & Hulett.

MESA

CROWDED HOUSE FOR PANAMA PICTURES

Mr. Prochaska's Lecture on Isthmian Canal.

A large crowd of Mesa people gathered at the Mesa opera house Saturday evening to see the Panama pictures and hear the instructive lecture given by John Prochaska. A few moving pictures were given before and after the lecture. This was certainly a fine opportunity to get an idea of the immense work which is being done at the canal and to see the work as it is being carried on by the United States government, since the canal was purchased from the French government in 1904. The pictures were well colored and true to life being productions from actual photographs. One got a good idea of the city of Panama where about fifty different nationalities are represented; the up-to-date dredges and the steam shovels at work along the line of the canal; the hospitals; and the extensive buildings occupied by the great army of workers, and the methods which are being used to convert that part of Central America from a pest hole to its present condition.

A PARTY.

A crowd of young people gathered at the home of Mrs. Schuman Saturday evening where a very pretty party was given in honor of Miss Andrews. Light refreshments were served and various games were the diversion of the evening.

T. Pomeroy was a Phoenix visitor yesterday.

EPISCOPAL SERVICES.

The Episcopal congregation held services in the K. P. hall last evening at the usual hour. Rev. Moulton of Phoenix was present to preach the sermon.

RESIDING IN TOWN.

A NEW ROUTE TO GOLDFIELD MINING CAMP.

In order to find out the shortest route between the Arizona and Eastern railroad at Mesa and the Mammoth mine, which is about twenty-three miles east of Mesa on the Roosevelt road, a survey will soon be made and work started on the construction of a road in order to haul supplies from Mesa to the mining camp. It is thought that in this way the distance can be shortened about ten miles, and no great expense attached to the building of the same, as it is over an almost level stretch of country.

Miss Nora Merrill and her brother, Parley, who is to be employed in Barnett's drug store have returned to Mesa. Miss Merrill was called to her home in Benson a short time ago on business.

Frank Lapham who figured so conspicuously in the alleged kidnapping of his brother, a short time ago returned to Phoenix yesterday.

Services will be held in the Catholic church next Sunday at the usual time.

Robber Catarrh

Steals Energy and Will Power From Its Victims.

Catarrh robs its victims of energy—some physicians say of will power. That may be the reason why thousands of catarrh sufferers haven't ambition enough to accept this fair and square offer by the Lovett Drug Co., which they make without any whys and wherefores or red tape of any kind.

The Lovett Drug Co. says, "We guarantee HYOMEI to cure catarrh, acute or chronic, or money back," and that offer is open to every reader of The Republican.

HYOMEI (pronounce it High-on-me) is the purest Australian Eucalyptus combined with Thymol and other germ-killing antiseptics.

Pour a few drops into the small vest pocket HYOMEI inhaler and breathe it into the lungs over the inflamed membrane infested with catarrh germs.

It is pleasant to use. It kills the germs, soothes the sore membrane, and cures catarrh; if it doesn't your money back.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at the Lovett Drug Co.'s and drugists everywhere. A complete outfit, which includes a bottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber inhaler and simple instructions for use costs $1.00.

STORY OF THE MISTLETOE
How It Came to Be an Invitation to Osculation

The custom of kissing under the mistletoe goes back to the days when Thor and Odin and all the other gods of the Northland walked and talked with men.

Baldur, the son of Odin and Frigga, the Apollo of Scandinavian mythology, the faxen haired god of sunshine and his attendant blessings, was loved by all earthly and heavenly beings save one—Loki, the god of earthly fire and its attendant evils.

Naturally Loki would hate him, for in the spring when Baldur came forth with his bright and warm sunlight the world's people deserted Loki's hearth fires and did not return to them until the golden faced god chose to depart in the fall. But Baldur with his happy nature cared little for the other's jealousy and in the love of his wife, Nanna (blossom), lived for years a joyous existence.

At length, however, says a writer in Uncle Remus's Magazine, he began to have troublesome dreams—visions of disaster and of death. What could it mean? It was all so new to him, this lover of light and pleasure. He consulted the mother, Frigga, and she in her distress sent word to Odin.

Long Frigga thought and then she devised a plan; she sent messengers far and wide through the universe and had every creature, animate and inanimate, swear to do her son no harm. Willingly all promised, for did not all love the sunlight god? Ah! No, the surly mistletoe refused to swear, and that was the cause of great future sorrow. But what injury could a bit of mistletoe do? Frigga was all joy; her darling was safe from anything sprung from earth, air, fire or water.

Now as the years passed and the gods learned how absolutely safe Baldur was from any wound whatever they frequently amused themselves by using him for a target for all sorts of missiles—stones, clubs and weapons. One day as they were playing thus and shouting with laughter at their father's Frigga, sitting at her spinning wheel, asked an old woman who was passing what was the cause of all the merriment.

"The gods," answered the old woman, "are amusing themselves trying to hurt your son."

"As," said Frigga, with a boastful smile, "they can never do it, for all things have promised not to harm him."

"All things," inquired the old woman.

"Yes, all things, except the frail mistletoe, who of course, is too insignificant to trouble any one." The old woman was Loki in disguise.

CONTEST NOTICE.

S. Land Office, Phoenix, Arizona.

Hastening away, the evil god went straight to the mistletoe that grew on the oak outside the gates of Valhalla and breaking off a piece turned it by magic art into a hard, sharp dart. Then hurrying back he found the gods still playing the game—all except Baldur's blind brother, Hodur, who leaned gloomily against a tree and listened in silence to the laughter.

"Why do you not play, Hodur?" said Loki.

"How can I?" answered Hodur.

"Am I not blind?"

"Ah," laughed Loki, "I will show you how. Stand thus and throw this dart with all your strength."

The mistletoe shaft hissed through the air, and Baldur, the god of life giving light, fell dead.

Tenderly the guards placed his body upon his favorite ship, the Kinghorn, and prepared to give both to the sea. Then all the heavenly ones came to gaze upon the beloved face; but Nanna, bending over him, could not bear the sight, and her heart broke, and she was laid beside him on the vessel. Then the great ship was set afire and floated, a sheet of flame, out on the distant waters. And even yet we may see it sunset the burning vessel of Baldur far in the west.

Now the gods felt that some show of justice must be made, and in conciliation, hoping to soothe the passionate sorrow of the mother, Frigga, they dedicated the mistletoe to her; and to this day it is under her care and control. And now sin and sorrow had hallowed it; for henceforth it was to grow, not as a symbol of bitterness and hatred, but as a sign of tenderness and love.

But the gods decreed that it was to stand for those things only so long as it touched no Loki's kingdom, the soil; for this reason it is never seen growing on the ground and we ourselves always hang it high on the rafters or chandeliers. And now that it was the plant of love, the custom arose for enemies to become friends under the mistletoe; for lovers to pledge their troth beneath it; and for those who met there to kiss as a sign of affectionate fellowship.

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross. Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indecate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M.
